

So, you're interested in creating a video CV? Superpeople support disabled people to visually show employers who they are as a person; including their education, experience, interests, hobbies and ultimately how their disability is a positive part of who they are and does not affect their ability to work. If a video CV would help you, this is how we do it...

The Process

1. We meet for an informal consultation to find out about who you are and what kind of job you're looking for.
2. We take away the information from the consultation and come up with a unique idea for your CV, that showcases your personality and employability.
3. We contact you and let you know our idea. After we've made any adjustments based on your thoughts and you confirm you're happy we write up a plan for the day of filming.
4. Together we decide on a date and a place to film the CV.
5. We film the video CV! This will be a fun day and a celebration of who you are.
6. We take away the footage and edit it, we also write original music for it too (your own soundtrack!)
7. We send you the final draft, so you can check you're happy and we can make any last adjustments.
8. We send you the final video, to send to employers and help you on your job search! We will also put it out to our networks on social media, to promote your search for work.
